Holland: Birds & Art
Waterfowl Spectacle & Dutch Masters
November 29 – December 8, 2026

We include here information for those interested in the 2026 Field Guides Holland: Birds & Art tour:

- a general introduction to the tour
- a description of the birding areas to be visited on the tour
- an abbreviated daily itinerary with some indication of the nature of each day's birding outings

These additional materials will be made available to those who register for the tour:

- an annotated list of the birds recorded on a previous year's Field Guides trip to the area, with comments by guide(s) on notable species or sightings (may be downloaded from our web site)
- a detailed information bulletin with important logistical information and answers to questions regarding accommodations, air arrangements, clothing, currency, customs and immigration, documents, health precautions, and personal items
- a Field Guides checklist for preparing and keeping track of the birds we see on the tour
- after the conclusion of the tour, a list of birds seen on the tour

Large numbers of wintering waterfowl and waders of many species, a select sampling of northern European landbirds, and visits to several renowned museums discovering the art and cultural riches of this wonderful country are the goals of this itinerary in our "Birds & Art" tour series. Furthermore, it will be interesting to see how the Dutch protect their lowlands from flooding and manage nature in such a small and densely populated country.

Tour guide Godfried Schreur has blended the perfect mix of exciting birding with arts and culture into this new tour. We'll begin exploring birds and art in The Hague and surroundings, where we will encounter the first flocks of Eurasian Coots, Tufted Ducks, Common Pochards and Common Wood-Pigeons while searching for species like Common Kingfisher and Eurasian Jay. A short sight-seeing tour will offer views on the International Court of Justice and the king's residence, Huis ten Bosch. In the Mauritshuis, a fine museum with wonderful paintings in exposition, we will be thrilled standing eye to eye with the "Girl with a Pearl Earring", the masterpiece of Johannes Vermeer.

Moving further south, we'll bird an immense wetland created by the deltas of the Rhine and Waal rivers, where we'll look for Eurasian Spoonbill, Common Shelduck, Dark-bellied Brant, Red-throated Loon, European Golden Plover, Eurasian Curlew and Roedeer, and check out the massive engineering works that keep the sea from invading these nederlande (the Netherlands, or low-lying lands). The next day, we head north, passing by the UNESCO World Heritage site of Kinderdijk, with a marvelous concentration of old windmills. The surrounding area can be good for Lesser White-fronted Goose, Water Rail and Bearded Reedling. We will organize a special excursion to seek owls, like Tawny Owl and Long-eared Owl. In the National Park of de Hoge Veluwe we explore a beautiful woodland and heathland for Eurasian Nuthatch, Eurasian Jay, tits (Crested, Coal, Marsh, Long-tailed) and finches (Brambling, Eurasian Bullfinch, Red Crossbill). We might even be lucky to find Middle Spotted Woodpecker or the impressive Black Woodpecker. But this can be difficult as they are not vocal in this season. In the heart of the National Park we visit the Kroller Muller Museum, which conserves a superb collection of paintings of Vincent van Gogh. We'll continue our trip birding at the famous nature reserve, the Oostvaardersplassen, the "new wilderness" where we have a good chance to see the majestic White-tailed Eagle.

We will drive over a dike through the IJsselmeer, with chances of spotting Smew, Common and Red-breasted Merganser, towards the ferry to Texel. This marvelous island is the largest of the Wadden Islands, and a magnet to birders from across Europe looking for the many different species present. It's often good for waders like Black-tailed Godwit, Red Knot, Pied Avocet and Ruff, and for passerines like Redwing, Fieldfare and Eurasian Siskin. Back on the mainland, we visit the Afsluitdijk (yes, we'll teach you how to pronounce these and other Dutch names!) for waterbirds including Whooper and Bewick's Swans. In the picturesque town of Haarlem, we will visit the Natural History Museum of Teylers, with original works of famous naturalists and some interesting artworks. The last afternoon will be spent in Amsterdam, where we'll have the chance to delve into the famous Rijksmuseum to be awed by the works of Rembrandt, including his expansive and famous canvas, The Night Watch, and other Dutch Masters. The finishing touch will be a nice farewell dinner.

Physical requirements of this tour

- TRAILS & WALKING: Moderate amounts of rather easy walking (up to 2 miles per day), all on roads or broad trails, all on level ground with no obstacles.
- POTENTIAL CHALLENGES: We do spend a bit of time standing in the cold to watch birds on this tour.
- PACE: On most days, we will breakfast at about 7:30 a.m. and afterward head out to bird (reaching birding areas involves short travel times). Lunches will be at restaurants, afternoons spent enjoying Holland's museums.
- WEATHER: Temperatures will range from the high 20s at night to 40s or 50s F during the day. We will most probably have to deal with some rain showers, fog and wind.
- VEHICLE SEATING: Travel times are short on this tour, and we do relatively little birding from inside the vehicle; nevertheless, we request that participants rotate seating during the tour, so that each participant has equal opportunity during our travel.
- BATHROOM BREAKS: We use modern indoor restrooms on this tour. Incidentally a "bush stop" in the field might be necessary.
- OPTING OUT: Taking a day off during the tour is certainly possible on non-travel days (just let the guides know if you will be doing so).

If you are uncertain about whether this tour is a good match for your abilities, please don't hesitate to contact our office; if they cannot directly answer your queries, they will put you in touch with the guide for the tour.

About the Birding Areas

South-western Delta—In the southwest of the Netherlands the bigger rivers like the Rijn and the Waal finish their course just before reaching the North Sea. An immense and dynamic wetland is created by the interaction of the rivers and the sea featuring salt water, brackish and fresh water bodies, tidal areas, and sandbanks. It is also the area with the most impressive hydraulic engineering works of Europe. After the fatal floods of 1953, the Dutch authorities decided that all the sea arms of the provinces of Zuid-Holland and Zeeland should be closed by dikes and dams in order to protect the land and the people against the sea. This delta holds an important wintering population of all kinds of shorebirds like loons, grebes, ducks, geese, swans and waders.

de Hoge Veluwe National Park—This national park has several interesting habitats, including conifer and deciduous tree forests, heathlands and sand dunes. In addition to many bird species belonging to the Tits, Finches, Larks, Woodpeckers, Thrushes and Corvids, we might have the chance to see Red Deer, Wild Boar and Mouflon. In the heart of the National Park a fine art museum is found. The Kroller Muller Museum was established in the year 1938 and is dedicated to modern art. It owns an important collection of paintings of Vincent van Gogh and is also famous for the extensive sculpture garden. De Hoge Veluwe is a wonderful example of symbiosis between nature and art.

Wadden Sea and Texel Island—The Wadden Sea (Waddensee) is a vast intertidal zone that runs from the Netherlands north to the eastern coast of Denmark. It is an important area for breeding birds as well as for many migrants. Texel Island is the largest of the Wadden Islands, and is a well-known birding site. Texel is on a migratory route for many waders and waterfowl species. The Wadden Sea is an important area for wintering birds like Brant (Dark-bellied), Common Eider, Common Shelduck, Eurasian Curlew, Black-bellied Plover and Eurasian Oystercatcher.

IJsselmeer and Afsluitdijk—With the construction of the Afsluitdijk in 1933, the Zuiderzee (Southern Sea) was turned into the IJsselmeer (lake of the IJssel). The Afsluitdijk is one of the dikes built to protect some of the lowland areas from flooding. This dam cut off an arm of the North Sea, creating a large freshwater lake called IJsselmeer. The 20-mile long dam creates an interesting environment, with salt water on one side (Wadden Sea), and fresh water on the side of the IJsselmeer. Rough-legged Hawk, Peregrine Falcon, Whooper, Mute and Tundra Swan (Bewick's), Greater Scaup, Red-crested Pochard, Smew and large numbers of Eurasian Coot, Eurasian Wigeon, Gadwall, Common Pochard and Tufted Duck can be found here. Actually, building works are taking place at the Afsluitdijk in order to prevent floodings due to sea level rise. These works might complicate a visit to this masterpiece of engineering.

Flevoland – Oostvaardersplassen—Flevoland was once part of the Zuiderzee and the IJsselmeer, but a major reclamation project created a polder with a landscape of agricultural land and canals surrounded by lakes. Flevoland is therefore the youngest province of Holland. Polders are areas of dry-land created when water is held back by the famous dikes. These polders are used for agriculture, however, the lowest area of the Flevopolder, was left aside for later cultivation. During the few years of "set aside", a huge reedmarsh developed, attracting thousands of birds. Consequently, the area called the Oostvaardersplassen was declared nature reserve, and it is now one of the most famous protected natural areas of the Netherlands. Some years ago, a movie was made about nature, life and death in the Oostvaardersplassen. This movie, named the New Wilderness, was very successful in the Dutch cinemas. The Oostvaardersplassen and other areas of Flevoland can be good for White-tailed Eagle, Smew, Pied Avocet, Common Shelduck, Willow Tit, Bearded Reedling, etc...

Itinerary for Holland: Birds & Art

Day 1, Sun, 29 Nov. Flights depart from the US.

Day 2, Mon, 30 Nov. Arrive in Amsterdam, birding and Mauritshuis museum. We will meet at 10:00AM at the Rembrandt Café in Arrivals 1 at the Amsterdam Schiphol Airport. We will start driving south and make our first birding walk in the Haagse Bos, getting familiar with the most common bird species like Great-Crested Grebe, Common Pochard, Tufted Duck, Eurasian Jackdaw and Common Wood-Pigeon. Eurasian Jay, Great Spotted Woodpecker, Great Tit and Eurasian Blue Tit are also possible. We will make a short sightseeing tour in The Hague, the residential city of the government and the monarchs of the Netherlands. Finally, we enjoy a guided visit to the Mauritshuis, a small but very interesting museum next to the governmental buildings. It conserves a superb collection of Dutch Masters, with the outstanding painting of the Girl with a Pearl Earring by Johannes Vermeer. The exhibition also includes paintings of Rembrandt van Rijn, Frans Hals, Jan Steen, Paulus Potter, and other Dutch painters. After the museum visit we will drive to our first hotel. Night in Rockanje.

Day 3, Tue, 1 Dec. South-western Delta (Haringvliet+Brouwersdam). This morning we will visit the Haringvliet and the Brouwersdam in the southwestern delta which are usually very good for seabirds, waders, loons, grebes, and seals. We will possibly see species like Purple Sandpiper, Eurasian Oystercatcher, Eared and Horned Grebe, Red-throated Loon and Common Scoter. Besides, there is a small chance to find Long-tailed Duck, Black Guillemot, Common Loon, Snow Bunting or Rock Pipit. After lunch, we will continue our excursion through the Delta and visit some agricultural areas that attract great numbers of geese, ducks and waders. Here European Spoonbill, Northern Goshawk, Tundra Bean Goose, Pied Avocet, European Golden Plover and Common Kingfisher are also amongst the possibilities. Night in Rockanje.

*The Long-tailed Tit is a woodland species that we'll look for near Wageningen.

Day 4, Wed, 2 Dec. Oude Land van Strijen, Kinderdijk. We leave our hotel in eastern direction towards an area, south of Rotterdam which usually holds a small winter population of the rare Lesser White-fronted Goose. We will try to find them amongst thousands of Barnacles and Greater White-fronted Geese. Then we will visit the UNESCO World Heritage site of Kinderdijk enjoying the typical dutch landscape with dozens of old, traditional windmills. Bearded Reedlings and Reed Buntings are sometimes feeding in the reedbeds along the canals. In the afternoon we will drive further northeast to our next hotel and make a birding stop in a woodland on the way. Today we will also probably see Eurasian Kestrel, Eurasian Magpie, Eurasian Jackdaw, Dunnock and European Robin. Night in Wageningen.

Day 5, Thu, 3 Dec. Hoge Veluwe - Kröller Müller Museum. In the morning, we will make an owl excursion with a chance to see Tawny and Long-eared Owl. Afterwards we will drive to the National Park of de Hoge Veluwe, where we will explore a beautiful woodland and heathland. Here we aim to see Crested, Coal, Marsh and Long-tailed Tits, Goldcrest, Firecrest, Eurasian Nuthatch, Short-toed Treecreeper, Eurasian Jay, Brambling and with a bit of luck Red Crossbill and Northern Goshawk. Great Spotted Woodpecker is a common bird here. The other less common species of woodpeckers, however, stay quiet and hidden, being very hard to find at this time of year. After lunch, we will visit the sculpture garden and the Kröller Müller Museum which houses the world's second largest collection of Van Gogh paintings. Although not belonging to the Dutch Masters of the Golden Age, van Gogh is considered one of the most outstanding painters from Holland. The post impressionist painter suffered from mental illness and poverty during his life, but after his death was considered a genius and recognized as a founder of modern art. We'll enjoy these masterpieces, plus works by Claude Monet, Georges Seurat, and Piet Mondrian. Night in Wageningen.

This immature White-tailed Eagle was one of three that were seen on our 2019 tour. We'll look for these massive predators in the Oostvaardersplassen, where we've seen them each year. Photograph by guide Godfried Schreur.

Day 6, Fri, 4 Dec. Flevoland – Oostvaardersplassen - Texel. In the morning, we'll bird the area known as the Oostvaardersplassen, in the province of Flevoland. We will make an excursion to reed-beds, lakes, canals, arable and grazing land in the Oostvaardersplassen, visiting also some hides and blinds for the observation of birds. White-tailed Eagle, Pied Avocet, Common Shelduck, Whooper Swan, Cetti's Warbler, Long-tailed Tit and Bearded Reedlings are amongst the possibilities. After the lunch break and a short view on a replica of an ancient ship (of the Eastern Indian Company) called Batavia, we will make a birding stop at a lock aiming for good views of Smew, Red-breasted and Common Merganser. In the afternoon we drive over the Markerdijk through the IJsselmeer to Den Helder where we will take a ferry over to Texel. During the drive we pass by the Marker Wadden, the newest nature reserve in the Netherlands. Night in Texel.

Day 7, Sat, 5 Dec. Texel, Waddengebied. Texel is the largest Wadden-island and is becoming the birding island of the Netherlands. There are many different habitats, and the area is developed nicely for birders with numerous boardwalks, hides and visitor centers. The concentration of birders present on the island leads to the discovery of a lot of rarities, which attracts more birders, so updated information is crucial on Texel in order to find the best birds. Therefore, we will enjoy the services of an expert local guide who will help us find the places with the most interesting birds present. Amongst the target species on Texel there are geese like Tundra Bean Goose, (Dark-bellied) Brant, swans like Whooper and Tundra (Bewick's), ducks like Common Eider and Common Goldeneye, waders like Eurasian Curlew, Pied Avocet, Black-tailed Godwit, European Golden Plover, and passerines like Eurasian Siskin, Redwing, Fieldfare, Eurasian Skylark, Horned Lark and Snow Bunting. Night in Texel.

Day 8, Sun, 6 Dec. Texel - Afsluitdijk - Teylers Museum - Haarlem. We will do some more birding on Texel-island at the beach trying to see sea-birds like Northern Gannet and Common Scoter. During the short ferry crossing back to the mainland, we have a chance to encounter seals. We will drive towards the Afsluitdijk which is the dike that separates the IJsselmeer, with fresh water, from the Waddenzee, with salt water. In winter, good numbers of the most sought-after species can be found along the dike like Whooper Swan, Common Eider, Red-breasted and Common Merganser and Smew. However, there is heavy building work going on on the Afsluitdijk, adapting the dike to the rising sea level. So it is not sure if we are able to actually do some birding on the dike. If not we will stay around Den Oever which is an area where often vagrants and rarities turn up. After lunch with fish&chips and the famous dutch herring in the harbor of Den Oever, we will drive to Haarlem where we will enjoy a guided visit at Teylers, the oldest museum of The Netherlands. It is known as the best preserved 18th century public knowledge institution for arts and sciences in Europe. Art and science under one roof since 1784! The collection includes original works of naturalists, artists and scientists like John James Audubon, Coenraad Jacob Temminck and Maria Sibylla Merian. Night in Haarlem.

Day 9, Mon, 7 Dec. Birding at the dunes and Pier of IJmuiden, visit the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam. Following breakfast, we will bird the lovely woodland around the hotel which can hold finches like Brambling and Hawfinch. We will also try to find any missing species so far or twitch a local rarity. After lunch we will head to Amsterdam, where we will visit the most renowned museum of Holland, which holds the best collection of Dutch Masters of the 17th century. The Rijksmuseum exhibits artwork of Rembrandt, Vermeer and Hals, but also from Van Gogh. The most famous painting is the Nachtwacht, or The Night Watch, an enormous masterpiece of Rembrandt van Rijn. We will have plenty of time exploring the masterpieces of this museum. As a finishing touch to this Birds & Art tour, we enjoy a nice farewell dinner. Night in Haarlem.

Day 10, Tue, 8 Dec. Departure. Transfers to Amsterdam Schiphol Airport where you can catch your flights home.

About Your Guides

Godfried Schreur developed his interest in wild birds and nature at an early age and became involved as a volunteer in several Dutch naturalist associations. In 1991, after completing his Bachelor of Science studies in Nature and Landscape Management at the Van Hall Larenstein Institute (Velp, Netherlands), Godfried moved to Spain's Extremadura region for a stint of volunteer work with the conservation NGO ADENEX. Since 1994, Extremadura has been his permanent base, and there he co-founded the company ECOTUREX with Ana Cordero. He was one of the first specialized birding guides in the region, an activity that he continues to practice with great pleasure.

Godfried is a friendly guide with extensive knowledge and wide-ranging experience. He finds great satisfaction in sharing that knowledge and the beauty of nature with participants. He knows the geography of Extremadura and other interesting areas in Spain very well; he has also traveled, birded, and guided widely throughout Europe and parts of Africa. He is fluent in Dutch, Spanish, and English. Godfried also has a deep interest in other fauna (the study of bats is another specialty), flora, and humanity's role in landscape, culture, and history. Additionally, Godfried remains active in environmental causes to promote sustainable development and nature conservation.

Jay VanderGaast was introduced to birding by his father, and his obsession with birds was evident by age seven when he memorized the plates in Peterson's eastern field guide. He went on to earn a B.S. in biology at university and briefly contemplated a career in research, but two years on the mosquito-infested arctic tundra watching ptarmigan do little other than occasionally getting eaten by Gyrfalcons soon put an end to that plan! Instead, he strapped on a backpack and a pair of bins and began roaming the world in search of birds.

His travels eventually led him to Costa Rica, where he stumbled into a job as a birding guide at Rancho Naturalista Lodge. Amazed that he was actually getting paid to watch birds, he jealously guarded his position there for six years. His career with Field Guides coincided with the dawn of the new millennium (if you believe that began in 2000!), and since then he has guided more than 100 tours on several continents. When he's not on tour, Jay's native habitat is his home near Montreal.

“Godfried Schreur added so much to this trip: it was a huge bonus to have someone so knowledgeable about local geography, history, food, and so forth...” A.D., Spain: La Mancha, Coto Doñana & Extremadura

“Jay VanderGaast was a delight to travel with...incredible at finding the birds and extremely helpful in getting us on the birds—which was much appreciated! ...he made the trip an exceptional experience which I will remember for the rest of my life.” L.K., Costa Rica
