

Trip Report — Belize: Tropical Birding Short & Sweet II 2025

November 21-29, 2025 with Chris Benesh

Here we are at the end of our adventure, ready to depart Black Rock Lodge for Belize City.

Weather played a factor in the Belize Short and Sweet tour of November 2025. Severe weather in Dallas set in motion travel delays for a few of us. Once we were all together in Belize, things really took off for the best. Beginning based at the comfortable Lamanai Outpost Lodge, we had four days to explore this wonderfully rich birding destination. Local guide Eduardo Ruano was his usual amazing self and tirelessly took us to the right places to see the species we were after. Also along was guide in training David Blanco, who was a welcome addition and a bundle of good, positive energy.

Jeanette Shores's fabulous shot of the strutting Mayan Antthrush.

So many highlights during our stay at Lamanai Outpost Lodge located on the banks of the New River Lagoon in Orange Walk District. We had a couple of productive walks around the village of Indian Church, visits to the Lamanai archeological site, and several boat trips on the lagoon and its tributaries, Dawson Creek and Indian Creek. One of these was a nighttime spotlight (and thermal scope) cruise.

On our way to Mountain Pine Ridge we encountered a pair of Gray-headed Kites including this bird that flew overhead at one point. Photo by Chris Benesh.

Once we said our farewells to Eduardo and the staff of Lamanai, we boarded our flight to the Cayo District where we were met by Isaias Morataya, a seasoned Black Rock Lodge guide. Isaias took good care of us during the entirety of our stay at the lodge, with visits to Mountain Pine Ridge (including 1000 Foot Falls), the Green Hills Butterfly Ranch, Slate Creek Lookout, and the archeological site of Caracal, once one of the largest of the Mayan cities during the classic period. An unseasonal low pressure system was lurking nearby, bringing a surprising amount of rain to the region. Fortunately for us, the heaviest of it fell overnight, though we did experience some impressive rain at times.

Charlie Baisden's lovely shot of an American Pygmy-Kingfisher enjoyed on one of our river cruises.

We had quite a few highlights. A few that stood out included the Mayan Antthrush strutting across the trail in front of us one afternoon at Lamanai. Another was the Tody Motmot which eluded us for so long before finally revealing itself to us. The Orange-breasted Falcon that showed so well for us at 1000 Foot Falls was tremendous. The Pinnated Bittern that lurked in the rice fields near Indian Church was exciting, as was the Jabiru there as well. Others shared by you included Black-headed Siskin, Red-capped Manakin, King Vulture, American Pygmy-Kingfisher, Black Phoebe, Gray-headed Kite, Crimson-collared Tanager, Great Currasow, Sungrebe, Purple-crowned Fairy, and Golden-olive Woodpecker.

The group can often make the trip and you all were fabulous and did just that. It was a treat to bird with friends new and old.

The several species of parrots were seen included this Yellow-lored (Yucatan) Amazon that Charlie Baisden photographed here.
